Why October 9th?

Do you remember, six long long years ago, that a certain presidential candidate proclaimed: "Those who have had a chance for four years and could not produce peace should not be given another chance." -- Richard M. Nixon, October 9, 1968.

Four years...six years...shucks, we could count ten years...and still no peace. But the Nixon proclamation above is one that we can all agree with.

THE HOUSEWARMING: I purchased the house from the Chaplains Commission in August this year; they had owned it for about twenty years. Before that, it had been the D.C. home of Senator Hiram Johnson of California. And before that? Well, it's been there 150 years!

THE OCCUPANTS: The Fund for Peace is the major tenant; I occupy only a small apartment-office on the third floor. In the basement level you'll find "In the Public Interest," the radio and newspaper program managed by Lindsay Mattison and Bob Maslow, which has a national outreach to more than 1000 outlets. On the first floor Admiral Gene LaRocque is commander-in-chief of the Center for Defense Information, which analyzes D.O.D. programs and publishes the "Defense Monitor." On the second floor, Bob Borosage is in charge of the Center for National Security Studies, a new project of the Fund for Peace which recently sponsored the much-publicized CIA conference. And, finally, Morton Halperin, affiliated with CNSS, shares the third floor adjacent to my quarters.

THE CELEBRATION: Well, there's much to celebrate:

-  Obviously, the new house-home-headquarters.
-  The successes and continued programming of the Fund for Peace projects.
-  A chance to honor several friends, particularly Bill Dobrovir and associates, whose "milk suit" uncovered so much, and whose book "The Criminal Offenses of Richard M. Nixon" reached 130,000 copies.
-  The tenth wedding anniversary of my friends Victor and Sarah Kovner from NYC.
-  A chance to introduce Fritzi Cohen and Ernie Fitzgerald, who are initiating the Military Audit Project, which will rout out corruption within the M-I-C.
-  The announcement of our new Center for Constitutional Government, a 501c3 entity which will sponsor the Dobrovir and Cohen litigation projects.
-  A fascinating year ever since Agnew resigned -- and since the Saturday Night Massacre.
-  The completion of a most challenging year with the able help of my Washington staff: Anne Zill, Washington representative; Fran Cohen, her administrative assistant; and from NYC, Diane Abelman, exec. asst.
-  A fulsome year since my last D.C. bash (the Pro Musica concert at Kennedy Center).
-  The prospect of many fine freshmen in the 94th Congress.
-  And a veto-proof spirit for many years to come.

SO COME !! AND CELEBRATE !!

Please be sure
